Take Pride

And plan to celebrate gay pride week 1986

By Ed Verba and Rod Blacklock

"Pride is an emotion that is taken and can't be waited to be given."

The Lehigh Valley has been waiting 17 years--a very long time, by any standards--but the wait is over. We've been waiting for pride--gay pride--and, yes, there is a time that can be called the beginning of the wait.

In late June 1969, on the last weekend of that month, the course of gay history took a dramatic turn. Homosexuals stopped waiting for pride to be given and, through violent social means, seized the pride we still wait for in the Valley. In short, they rioted.

Prior to these riots--the Stonewall riots as they are called, named after the bar that was the scene of the initial uprising--harassment of gays, gay-owned businesses and gay-frequented businesses was commonplace.

The abuse came from all sides--from street gangs, from petty criminals and even from the New York City police. And threats of violence as well as fears of disclosure to the public kept the NYC gay community of that day on the defensive and far, far out of sight--until June 1969, when they discovered that riots got attention.

From that day, the gay community at large has been building an identity, free from harassment. That's the official story that you'll find in most history books, but they wrote the happy ending a little too soon.

True, New York City homosexuals have enjoyed openness and support and at least some degree of acceptance since that time. Gays in other large cities rode the coattails of the Stonewall riots to new-found freedom, as well.

Suddenly gays were no longer hiding in the dark, out-of-the-way establishments. They were taking pride in themselves and their communities. Thus was born Gay Pride in June 1969 in the big city, where it still lives.

Fortunately, however, Gay Pride isn't a stationary creature. It's always spreading, and it has finally reached the Lehigh Valley, after 17 years.

As good neighbors, it behooves us all to put out the welcome mat and make it feel at home. Heck, we could even throw it a big party--a welcome celebration, if you will. Yes! A party it shall be, as we embrace Gay Pride and take it into our homes and our lives, and make it stay forever.

We've even asked our mayors to help us by proclaiming this week Lehigh Valley Gay Pride Week 1986. You can help us receive this proclamation by writing your mayor in support of the idea.

But before getting ahead, why is Gay Pride coming to the Lehigh Valley, of all places? Simply because pride is attracted by achievement.

The Valley is long on achievement-- bars that provide endless entertainment and revelry, a self-supporting community center, an AIDS Service Center, a Metropolitan Community Church, a gay hot line, one of the oldest gay organizations in the area (Le-Hi-Ho) and, of course, a gay newsletter.

Now, A-B-E may not spell paradise, but the Lehigh Valley community has got it pretty good. There's a lot out there, and a lot to be proud of.

But more than its organizations and its services, it has its people. They, individually, should welcome Gay Pride and take it with them wherever they go. It belongs to no one group or individual; Gay Pride belongs to every gay man and lesbian in the Valley.

For those wishing to be part of the welcoming party, Gay Pride arrives on Sunday, June 22 and will be with us forever, but we'll only celebrate it for a week, until June 28. (In case you're curious, it's no coincidence we'll celebrate Gay Pride the last week of June.)

Among the events planned for Gay Pride Week, Take Pride '86, are a Take Pride Lecture, Take Pride Religious Service, Gay Pride Video Night and the first of an annual Lehigh Valley Lambda Awards banquet.

It will be a week to remember forever--the week that Gay Pride came to the Valley. So get out and celebrate, and let people know you're proud.

Numbers Don't Lie

By Huntley Haverstock

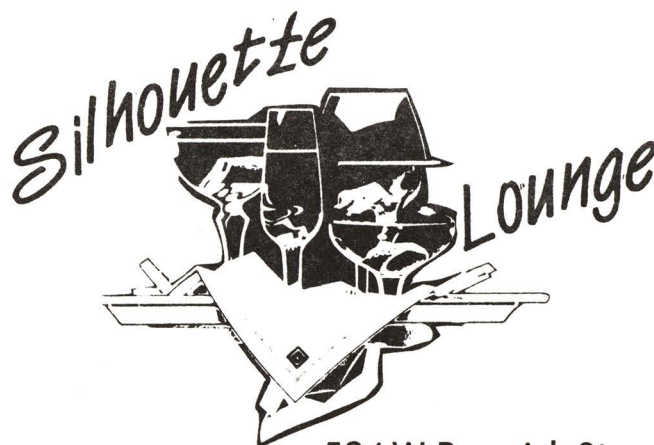

There is an old saying that numbers don't lie, and there is much truth in that tired cliché.

And at the May meeting of the Lambda Center's board of directors, some of the cold, hard reality of numbers reared its head.

After a careful estimate, the financial officers of the board came to some stark conclusions: To run the center--and by run we mean merely to keep the place open with lights, heat, telephones and other essentials--comes to a grand total of $700 a month. Board members also heard the sobering news that it takes roughly $10,000 a year to keep the doors open.

In an era when the cost of an "average" home can go as high as $90,000, this may not seem like a lot. But, the truth is, for any organization trying to get on its feet, $10,000 a year is not pocket change.

But if these figures seem daunting, there were others that hit home even harder. The membership of the center now stands officially at 101. For whatever reason, 65 members have failed to renew their memberships for the coming year.

Why this is so, those of us on the board are not sure. It is known only to you. But perhaps I could suggest some reasons.

Most of us are regularly flooded with requests for money. If you are like me, just about every worthy cause around wants a piece of my earnings. And in spite of what they tell us in Washington about inflation being licked, we know the real score when we look at the old wallet or purse.

Okay, then, you may say, why should I renew my membership in the Lambda Center? Why should I contribute to the organization? And perhaps the best reason is that the Lesbian and Gay Community Center of the Lehigh Valley represents you.

Today, our way of life is under siege from all sides, and the gains of the past few years are about to be lost. Medical officials confront us with the very real threat of AIDS. Clergymen describe us as "sodomites." And the parents of America still live in fear that their children may be taught in school by one of us.

It is this challenge that the Lambda Center seeks to meet head on.

The AIDS Services Center that endeavors to educate and inform the gay community is just one arm of the Lambda Center. Another is the Hot Line that offers help and information, particularly to those who are struggling to deal with a gay or lesbian identity in a hostile world. And with lectures and discussions, parties and worship services, the Lambda Center attempts to offer to the gay community a place to come together to share that common identity.

For too long, we have let the non-gay world define what sort of people we are. So the Lambda Center's directors believe that it is time for us all to take pride in who we are.

In keeping with the theme of gay pride, the center is throwing its full support behind the Lehigh Valley celebration of Gay Pride Week. Scheduled to run from June 22 to June 28, it is linked to the national Gay Pride Week that marks the anniversary of the Stonewall Riot in 1969.

Details of "Take Pride '86" can be found in the cover story of this issue of the Lambda Valley Monthly. What the Lambda Center board is asking you to do is show your support for gay pride by joining us.

So dig deep into your wallet and check the expiration date on your membership card (that's right, right next to your credit card). If it has expired, please consider renewing today.

And as for you folks who have never joined, why not take the plunge? Take pride in '86 by joining your Lambda Center.

SPECIAL REMINDER: The Lambda Center's benefit picnic is scheduled for Sunday, July 13. Please write your check to Lambda Picnic and send it to P.O. Box 52, Maxatawny 19538. Non-members of the Lambda Center send $15. Members send $12.50.

Le-Hi-Ho Looks Ahead

Dues to be instituted in the hall

Nineteen-eighty-six has been a year of change for Le-Hi-Ho, and next year promises to be the same as the Lehigh Valley's oldest gay organization continues to evolve.

Ironically, the change was precipitated by the advent of the Lambda Center--ironic because Le-Hi-Ho had played a leading role in the establishment of the center in the first place.

But with the center now taking on so many of the social, educational and cultural activities that previously had been Le-Hi-Ho's alone to arrange, Le-Hi-Ho has found itself free to try to meet some of the other needs of the area's gay community.

Most of its energies have gone into the production of the Lambda Valley Monthly, a publication for the entire gay community that grew out of Le-Hi-Ho's own highly successful newsletter.

Now nearing the end of its first year of publication, the Lambda Valley Monthly has been adjudged a success. It is mailed directly to more than 500 addresses, and hundreds of other copies are free for pickup at the area's night spots, restaurants and supportive businesses.

At the same time, Le-Hi-Ho has continued its 17-year tradition of hosting afternoon get-togethers on the fourth Sunday of every month -- now at the Lambda Center.

In keeping with the organization's newly directed mission, most of those Sunday afternoon meetings have focused on service to the gay community.

One of the most successful forums was devoted to a round-table discussion on coping with the fear of AIDS. Other topics during the year included a dose of gay politics and gay history. Le-Hi-Ho again sponsored the Christmas Open House at the Lambda Center last December.

The level of activity that Le-Hi-Ho has maintained during the past season, however, has inflicted a marked drain on resources both human and financial.

Le-Hi-Ho can always use willing helpers and leaders. And the Lambda Valley Monthly itself is launching a staff recruitment drive that includes a search for an editor. So those with some extra free time who'd like some new challenges and the chance to make some new friends are urged to contact Le-Hi-Ho through its mailing address, P.O. Box 1633, Allentown 18105, or by calling the Lambda Center Hot Line at 433-5444.

Le-Hi-Ho also finds itself in need of additional operating funds.

Although the Lambda Valley Monthly is virtually self-supporting, the incidental costs connected to the publication, as well as the expense of running the organization, have depleted its treasury. So although membership in Le-Hi-Ho has been free during the past several years, the organization's board of directors recently found itself forced to change that.

Beginning next fall, all members of Le-Hi-Ho will be assessed $10 annually. The new dues will be collected in September, in time for the start of the organization's 18th season.

The officers hope that with a larger treasury, it will again be in a position to offer some of the national speakers that have been a hallmark of Le-Hi-Ho's programs in the past. While those speakers seldom charge large fees, Le-Hi-Ho's financial condition has prevented the organization from being able to offer even reimbursement for travel expenses.

Le-Hi-Ho was founded in 1969, the same year that the so-called Stonewall Riot in Greenwich Village gave birth to the gay movement as we know it today. In fact, there may be no other gay organization in the country whose continuous existence is as long as Le-Hi-Ho's.

The idea for a gay community center in the Lehigh Valley was first raised during a brainstorming session of Le-Hi-Ho in 1982. As a result of that discussion, the organization convened a task force to study the possibilities, and the center's first fund-raising event was held under the auspices of Le-Hi-Ho.

The Lambda Center became a place in 1983, and the two organizations since that time have continued to enjoy warm relations and mutual support.

Le-Hi-Ho has amassed a library of several hundred volumes of gay fiction and non-fiction through the years that will soon be installed at the Lambda Center, where the books will be available for borrowing.

The organization's board has already begun planning its 1986-1987 calendar. Many worthwhile events have been proposed. Watch for details and plan to get involved.
